STEEL common above 110, corn worth more than $1 a bushel on the farm, 20 cents more than that in Chicago; wheat for delivery next May selling at $1.40, stocks crawling up so that brokers, afraid to buy, roll their eyes saying to themselves "it can't be real." SOMEBODY thinks there is a boom coming.

The Democrats, if it interests you, feel much more cheerful in New York than they did. Men really on the inside tell you "something has been ironed out." By this they mean that irritation caused by religious dissension in the Democratic convention is disappearing, and the irritated ones will be found as usual in the Democratic column on election day.

IF Governor Al Smith, of New York, decides to take a renomination, it will mean that he thinks New York will go Democratic, and in that case, you may rely upon it that the "ironing out" has been successfully accomplished. Al Smith would know.

THE leading optimist is Calvin Coolidge. "The end of the war at last," the President exclaims when told about the reparations agreement.

How often has that happy cry, "the end of war," been heard? And how often has war again broken out, almost before the cry died out? How many wars are locked up in those little nations so blithely and foolishly created off hand when the last big war ended, or PAUSED?

YOU will notice in cable dispatches from Europe that the prime minister of Bulgaria is goading the peasants to rebellion, that they may be persuaded to fight before they are ready, and destroyed.

BERLIN reports great activity in the red army of Russia, which will be at the "peak of its power" in the Spring. Then an attack on Rumania is expected. It is childish optimism to hope that the new Russian rulers will refrain from using the power they have seized, or fail or make some experiment, with the army that they have built up.

When you have a nice machine, you like to see it run.

HERE is good "prosperity" news for our neighbor, Mexico.

Ten thousand Jews at European ports, shut out of the United States by immigration laws, are invited to Mexico by President Calles, and will accept the invitation.

The arrival of these 10,000 Jews will mean adding 10,000 keen intelligences to the development of the Mexican industry, trade and resources.

CALLES, a thinking man, knows what happened to Spain and Portugal when they were stupid enough to drive out the Jew, and how Holland and England prospered when they welcomed the Jews. He renders great service to Mexico in bringing there 10,000 promoters of business, industry and prosperity.

JOHN W. DAVIS, giving reasons why farmers should vote for him, says he will "readjust freight rates." To help farmers freight rates must go lower. You say, "That must terrify the great financial powers, from J. P. Morgan to Kuhn, Loeb, and from Kuhn, Loeb to the Rockefellers, that sit within the shadow, bossing most of them."

BUT WAIT. Mr. Davis is going to "readjust freight rates" and do it "without hurting the roads."

This doesn't mean that he will chloroform the roads while the rates are reduced. They would feel the pain coming out of the chloroform. He has some other plan and the farmers eagerly wait to know what it is.

Will he, perhaps, say to the railroads, "You must cut charges for hauling grain and livestock, but you may increase rates for

QUINCY MAN SHOT DEAD IN OFFICE

Slain During Dispute Over a Woman; Alleged Murderer Arrested

Joseph Bruzzoni, proprietor of the Eagle Granite Company, on Centre street, West Quincy, was shot and fatally wounded at his place of business shortly after noon today:

Bruzzoni died a short time later at the Quincy City Hospital, and Sebastonio Di Cristofaro of No. 31 Phipps street, South Quincy, was arrested on a charge of murder.

According to the police Di Cristofaro went to the granite company's office and engaged in conversation with Bruzzoni. It is said the men became involved in an argument over a woman. Suddenly whipping out a revolver, Di Cristofaro is alleged to have fired five shots into the body of Bruzzoni.

The police were notified and after sending the wounded man to the hospital, started a search which ended in the arrest of Di Cristofaro a short time later.

Bruzzoni lived at Water and Penn streets, Quincy.

'SUNSHINE BABY' HAS BROKEN NECK; LIVES

ROSE MAYBURY

Seven-year-old Charlestown girl, known to her playmates on Lexington street as the "Sunshine Baby," as she appears on her cot in the Relief Hospital, where she is suffering from injuries to the head and body, received by being struck by an automobile in front of her home.

FAST GETTING BETTER AT HOSPITAL

Despite the fact that she is suffering from a broken neck and other injuries, three-and one-half-year-old Rose Maybury, the "Sunshine Baby" of Lexington street, Charlestown, is going to get well.

The little girl lies on a cot in the Relief Hospital, her neck in a plaster cast, as a result of being struck by an automobile in front of her home, No. 63 Lexington street.

The accident happened four days ago, and when the child was first taken to the hospital it was feared she would die. The little body was encased in splints and the neck in a plaster cast, and the fight began.

Because of her youth, and the plastic condition of her bones, the broken neck began to knit, and today little Rose's name was taken from the danger list.

She will be confined to her cot for many weary days, but unless an unforseen setback occurs, the "Sunshine Baby" will be back with her playmates eventually.

KID McCOY GOES MAD IN CELL

Beats at Bars and Starts Riot Among Other Prisoners in Jail

Los Angeles, Aug. 19.—Kid McCoy, ex-pugilist, held on suspicion of murder in connection with the death last Tuesday night of Mrs. Teresa Mors, became mentally unbalanced in his cell here today, according to a police announcement.

The former fighter, declared sane by State alienists, created a near riot in the jail, and according to keepers and police detectives, acted like a demented person.

He violently shook the bars of his cell and refused to answer questions as to what he was doing.

"IN PADDED CELL."

Later he told officers who hurried to the jail that he had been put in "a padded cell because they were afraid I would win the middleweight championship of the world."

Bits of paper in strange forms were found on the floor of McCoy's cell, and when these were taken from him the former pugilist cried like a baby and begged for their return, police said.

McCoy's strange actions were first noticed by the jailers, it was learned, shortly after midnight, when he awoke the entire jail yelling and shouting and beating on the bars.

He was quieted for a time, but later started the noise again and continued it despite efforts of the jailers.

McCoy will be taken to the receiving hospital for an examination and will be put under restraint if he becomes more violent, police stated.

INDICTMENT DEMANDED.

With a report of three alienists declaring the former ring idol sane and a list of a dozen witnesses to testify for the State, District Attorney Keyes today appeared before the Grand Jury demanding an indictment for first degree murder.

McCoy's sister, Mrs. Jennie Thomas, who has told the authorities her brother confessed to her a few hours after Mrs. Mors died that he was "afraid" he had killed a woman, was expected to be against her will, the State's chief witness.

Charges of attorneys for the dead woman's former husband, Albert A. Mors, that $12,000 worth of jewels had been stripped from Mrs. Mors' body, were connected today by the authorities with Mrs. Thomas' statement McCoy "possessed" several pieces of valuable jewelry when he visited her at 6 a. m., following Mrs. Mors' death.

E. BOSTON BANDITS LOOT SAFE

Coal Office, Scene of Terrific Gun Battle 21 Years Ago, Robbed by Cracksmen

The safe in the Winthrop Bridge office of the Metropolitan Coal Company, on Saratoga street, East Boston, the scene of a terrific gun battle twenty-one years ago, was robbed of a large sum of money today.

Burglars effected an entrance into the office and blew off the safe door, taking the entire contents. The amount has not been determined.

The robbery was discovered by a passing policeman, who notified his superiors in Division Seven.

Special officers were put to work on the case and Inspector Joseph Rollins of headquarters was summoned to hunt for finger-prints.

On December 27, 1903, four yeggmen walked into the same office and held up Clerk John F. Donovan. Binding and gagging him they threw the clerk into a corner, placing an inverted coal hod on his head and threatening to kill him if he stirred. They then started to open the safe.

Donovan loosened his hands, escaped and notified the police in Winthrop and East Boston, who surrounded the building. The thieves opened fire on the officers, who returned it, and two of the cracksmen were killed.

The other two, Frank Haydon and Thomas Bart, were captured and sentenced to thirty years in State's Prison, where Haydon killed himself.

The safe which they tried to open was the one which was blown today. The first man to be notified was Thomas F. Donovan, the hero of the previous attempt, who is now manager of the office.

300 SLAIN IN BATTLE IN TRANS-JORDANIA

Jeida, Arabia, Aug. 19 (A.P.).—Bitter fighting took place between the Wahabis and government forces in Trans-Jordania, according to news that reached here today. The Wahabis attacked and occupied several towns, including Tarash. Then the government forces, under command of Khalac Eltal and Araf, drove the invaders out of Tarash, killing 300, taking many prisoners and capturing camels and rifles. Fighting has occurred several times in the last two years. The territory is governed by Emir Abdullah, second son of King Hussein of the Hedjaz.

GETS $2; TRANSLATED ONE WORD IN COURT

Rudyard Kipling always has had the reputation of being one of the high-priced workmen of literature, but Sou Hou Wing of Boston has him stopped, and going backward. Sou Hou is an Interpreter in Municipal Court. Today he appeared in the case of Ching Low, charged with possession of opium. He translated one word. It was "guilty." For his services he received $2.

ENTIRE FRENCH FORCE QUITS 2 RHINE TOWNS

Paris, Aug. 19 (A.P.).—The evacuation by French troops of the Baden towns of Offenbourg and Appenweier was completed without incident, the French War Department announced today.

The two squadrons of the Eighth Hussars from Strasbourg and a company of the 170th Infantry from Kehl, which formed the entire occupying force, numbering something less than 200 men, have rejoined their garrisons.

The two towns, on the east bank of the Rhine, across from Strasbourg, have left not a single one of the foreign soldiers who entered their limits February 4, 1923, when the occupation was ordered as a penalty for the suspension of service on German sections of two international railway routes.

NEBRASKANS RALLY TO SUPPORT LA FOLLETTE

Grand Island, Neb., Aug. 19. (A.P.)—Formation of a new political organization in Nebraska to nominate Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin and Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana as independent candidates for President and Vice-President in this State, was in prospect, as LaFollette supporters gathered today for a state convention.

Syracuse Swept by Infantile Paralysis

Syracuse, Aug. 19.—Syracuse reached a new high mark for infantile paralysis with three new cases reported, making a total of ninety-four since the epidemic started.

Four new cases and one death were reported from other central New York communities.

The other cases which swelled the total for the Syracuse district almost 200 cases, were reported as follows:

One case which resulted fatally at Auburn; one new case from Verona and two from Dexter.

THIERY TO BE IN JAIL WITHIN FEW DAYS

Dr. Raymond Thiery was declared on the way to recovery today by the officials of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Although strapped to his cot to prevent another attempt at suicide, he was reported as stronger and gaining hourly.

Unless there is an unexpected setback or a further effort on the part of the physician to destroy himself, he will be taken from the hospital to Cambridge jail in two or three days.

When he awoke today Thiery was sullen and would not discuss the course of thought that led him to plunge a safety pin into the main artery of his right arm in an effort to kill himself.

"I am innocent; as innocent a man as ever was tangled in the web of circumstances," he declared.

MAY YET HAVE WISH.

Policemen on guard asked him why he had tried to kill himself. Thiery lapsed into silence. In view of his condition he was not questioned further.

All danger has not passed, but

COUPLE DRUGGED AND ROBBED ON TRAIN

Malone, N. Y., Aug. 19.—That they were drugged and robbed by a man who gave them a drink of poisonous refreshment on a Montreal-bound train is the charge made by Mr. and Mrs. William McFarlane of Syracuse. Found in a stupor as their train pulled into the local station, Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane were revived by physicians.

RUM CRAFT AND SIX MEN CAPTURED

New York, Aug. 19.—A rumrunner was wounded by the patrol off Rockaway as it made during a chase in which the Man o' War III was captured with 700 cases of champagne. Six men were arrested.

HOUSES FREE, RENTS TUMBLE IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Aug. 19.— Free occupancy until October 1, is offered by owners of apartment houses on the near North Side of Chicago because the building of many new flats has caused numerous vacancies, says the Chicago Tribune. Instead of the usual $10 to $15 rent advances during the Winter months, some cuts of $5 and more are being made, the newspaper says.

FIGHTER CHARGES FRAME-UP

Held in $2,000 on a Perjury Claim in Girl's Case Made by Minister

New York, Aug. 19.—Luis Angel Firpo, South American prize fighter, will find no legal obstacles in the way of meeting Harry Wills at Boyle's Thirty Acres on September 11.

For a time today it appeared his expected $200,000 share of the million-dollar gate was in peril.

But Federal Commissioner Hitchcock today postponed until Sept. 20 the hearing of perjury charges made against Firpo by Canon William S. Chase on behalf of the New York Civic League.

It is alleged that Firpo committed perjury before immigration officers at Ellis Island when he asserted that he had only a casual acquaintance with Senorita Blanca Lourdes Picart, who was a passenger on the steamer that brought him to this country. She was not permitted to land, but had to go to Cuba as her passport provided.

"Firpo is the victim of a frame-up," Attorney Bushel declared to Commissioner Hitchcock. "It even looks as if this may be attempted blackmail."

Canon Chase did not oppose the pugilist's request for the postponement, telling Commissioner Hitchcock that neither he nor the league desired to interfere with the Argentine's meeting with Wills.

ASKS DEPORTATION.

"We have no desire to act against the fight," he said. "Our only interest in the prosecution of Firpo is to keep the country clean; to keep undesirables out of it. The woman

WERRENRATH HURT AS CAR IS DITCHED

New York, Aug. 19.—Reinald Werrenrath, singer, was injured in an automobile accident on the road between Flatisburg and Dannemora, according to word received today by his mother, Mrs. Aretta Werrenrath. The message said that Werrenrath's car overturned into a ditch after it had been forced off the highway by another machine.

that to be done must come from the accused physician himself.

If he wishes now to do it is possible as an experiment the hospital authorities in spite of anything they can do.

Not in the history of the hospital has there been a case like Thiery's there. He is a skilled and able physician, well aware of the processes that produce death and capable of "advising" himself out of the world even while watched, it is feared.

Thiery was still under the doubled police guard at the hospital today. The Middlesex County district attorney's office stated that his suicide attempt would not delay his arraignment on the murder charge, which is set for September 13 next.

NURSE WAS ALERT.

That Thiery is alive and the State is assured of its chance to prosecute the physician for his alleged crimes is due to the alertness of Miss Helen C. Bubka, a student nurse at the hospital.

Dr. Thiery would have been dead minutes, in two or three minutes at most, had Miss Bubka not noticed from the assigned expression on the pillow in making her rounds in Ward D that something was wrong.

Hastily reaching for the doctor's hand to take his pulse Miss Bubka was startled to find the patient's pajama and the bed clothing soaked with blood.

The accused intern had attempted an eradicative end his life that he severed the main artery of his arm under the coverlet with the assurance of guard and they remained ignorant of the physical change that had come over the prisoner until the arrival of Miss Bubka.

It was all done so swiftly and Dr. Thiery, in his determination to die, suffered his pain so stoically, that the two policemen at his cot were not aware of what had happened.

The success of his plan at self-destruction, hinged upon how cleverly he could fool the police guard, so there was no way for them to suspect what was in his mind.

Dr. Thiery's pathological skill, confined to the bed covering nicely concealed the ligation of the brachial surgeons who hastened to the melodramatic scene at 7:45 Monday morning.

Dr. Thiery had lost more than a pint of blood before Miss Bubka had discovered his condition. He was dying when the surgeons ordered an immediate blood transfusion to save his life.

Special Officer John Connors, on duty at the hospital, volunteered to give his blood. The operation was hurried and successful. It revived the spark of life in Thiery, but impaired nothing.

NOW HAS ARMS BOUND

Surgeons admitted the accused would have been dead in fifteen minutes. Dr. Thiery's ingenuity in counting death with the aid of the sleeve of his pajama, a common shoer such as is used to bind meat, a safety pin and a safety razor blade remained in perfect orders to what his arms to prevent a second suicide attempt.

Today his arms are pinioned and the police guards never remove their gaze from him. His first suicide attempt was carried out, say the police, without the slightest suspicion move on his part above the bed clothing or the faintest twist or squirm.

And the attempt brought home to the authorities, they say, the desperate regret of prisoner they are watching. Dr. Thiery admitted to the police that he used a safety pin and a safety razor blade to sever the arteries, but an exhaustive search of his cot and surroundings failed to reveal any trace of the blade. The skewer and a blood-stained safety pin were found.

Fear that Dr. Thiery may have deftly concealed the razor blade caused apprehension and sharpened the vigilance of the guards.

The letters written by Dr. Thiery late Sunday are all in the nature of farewell messages showing that when he wrote them he expected to be dead in his hospital cot when they were found.

One was directed to his seventy-year-old father, William D. Thiery, No. 34 Central street, Somerville.

MOVIE STRIKE THREATENED IN BOSTON

Picture Machine Operators Will Be Joined by Other Theatre Workers

A strike of motion picture machine operators and other employes in all Boston theatres—legitimate, Somerville, motion picture and burlesque, was threatened today.

Despite the fact that existing contracts do not expire until Labor Day, members of the film operators' union have voted to strike to enforce their original wage demands.

The power to call a walkout has been given to the wage scale committees of Boston Moving Picture Operators' Protective Union 182.

CLAIM CONTRACT BROKEN.

The union men say the action was made necessary by infringement of the existing contract through the alleged use of machines in the operators' booths to break in new men.

"Any further infringement of our contract by the managers," said James F. Burke, business agent of the union, "means that our men will be ordered out on strike at once.

"If the managers are willing to play fair and live up to the contract until it expires on Labor Day, we shall do the same, but the slightest infringement from now on means that our men will be ordered out on strike without further notice."

WANT MORE PAY.

The wage committee of Theatrical Stage Employes' Union 11 refuses to add to their statement that the members on Sunday had voted to reject the offer of the theatre owners and managers to renew the existing wage and working agreement.

There are approximately 136 motion picture and vaudeville houses doing business with Local 182 in its ten-mile jurisdiction. The operators are now paid $45 a week. They are asking for $65 a week for six days. The stage hands are asking for an average increase of 22½ per cent, and the musicians for $75 a week in the regular houses and $80 for the combination houses.

PUGILIST AND GIRL HE BROUGHT TO U. S.

LUIS FIRPO AND BIANCA LOURDES PICART

Beautiful Argentine girl and heavyweight pugilist as they appeared when they arrived recently on a boat from South America. The girl, whom Firpo represented as his secretary was deported, but he was allowed to enter the United States. Cannon Chase, insisting on a single stand, got $5 for both, obtained the warrant for Firpo's arrest under the Mann Act and declared he had evidence that the pair had lived together in New York last year when Firpo fought Dempsey.

FINDS WHITES IN AFRICA, SLAVES OF BLACKS

British Expedition Reveals Pathetic Plight of Scores of Dutch Pioneers

London, Aug. 19.—Out of the great African interior, by way of Capetown, comes a pathetic story of a group of white men and women living in a state of subjection to blacks, who exercise complete mastery over them.

The tragic fate of these whites was revealed in a report that officials of the South African government's locust expedition, now in the interior of the great Kalahari desert, sent to Capetown. The expedition went into the interior to study the breeding grounds of locusts.

When they arrived at Molopolole, a hundred miles in the interior of the desert, they were taken before Sebele, the paramount native chief. They found him well educated, able to speak English fluently, and both he and his wife wearing European clothes.

The visitors discovered some fifty white men and women living near the chief's kraal where they act as servants to the chief and his followers.

They are thought to be descendants of old Dutch pioneers who, trekking into the interior, lost themselves in the desert.

Their horses, overcome with the drought, died, and the pioneers flung themselves on the mercy of the natives.

These unfortunates have no power to own land and no privileges of any kind. They are virtually serfs to the natives, filling the land of their black masters who give them small quantities of grain as wages.

The natives around Molopolole are rich both in cattle and land. They carry rifles, but the whites are not permitted to possess firearms.

Chief Sebele dispenses justice to all his tribe—the Bechuana—who are recognized as the aristocracy of the Kalahari.

The Kalahari desert forms the western part of British Bechuanaland and is about 120,000 square miles in extent. It was first crossed to Lake Ngami by Dr. David Livingstone in 1849.

MAYOR'S VETO ON JITNEYS IS EXPECTED

The City Council granted three jitney licenses in the West Roxbury district, two of which will probably be vetoed by Mayor Curley. To the Boston Elevated it gave permission to operate, between Centre and Eliot streets and Centre and Belgrade avenue, over Eliot, Pond, May, Burroughs and Centre streets, connecting with surface lines to Elevated terminals.

The Boston Bus Transportation Company was given the right to operate between junction of Belgrade avenue and Centre street, over Centre street to the Monument in Eliot Circle and another permit for a line starting at West Roxbury Parkway over Weld street to Church street.

Mayor Curley is opposed to jitney lines operating in opposition to the Boston Elevated as it would reduce city treasury receipts, he maintains.

The Elevated paid something over $700,000 to the city last year in rentals. To take money away from the Elevated would mean taking it away from the city, the Mayor asserts.

SHOE WORKERS DISCUSS SITUATION IN LYNN

The annual convention of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America was opened in Lynn, the general president, William B. Fogarty of Rochester, N. Y., presiding. The reading of reports of conditions in the various shoe centers of the country occupied the entire session.

Today the delegates were to discuss the action of the lasters and other Lynn locals in dropping out of the A. B. W. A. and forming an independent organization. Also the project of reinstating in general headquarters at present, but a central office in each district.

6 KENTUCKIANS SLAIN IN SHOOTING BATTLES

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 19.—Six Kentuckians were slain in week-end fights, according to reports assembled here today. The heaviest toll was taken at a mountain church in Harlan County, where two men named Halcomb and a fifteen-year-old boy named Davis were killed in a three-cornered pistol fight.

was deported. Firpo is no exception; he also should be deported."

Assistant United States Attorney Maxwell told the Commissioner the government had no interest in the case and would have nothing to do with its prosecution.

A crowded court room, with many women in the audience, heard Attorney Bushel move for the postponement, during the course of which he laid down a verbal barrage against Canon Chase.

At one point he demanded the clergyman's arrest on a counter charge of perjury, charging that he had made misstatements in procuring the warrant against Firpo.

He averred that the canon could have had no knowledge of what had transpired at Firpo's immigration hearing, whereupon the clergyman produced a letter from the assistant secretary of labor at Washington, in which Firpo's statements before the immigration authorities were summarized.

Firpo stood by stolidly throughout the proceedings, taking no part in them, an interpreter and his lawyer doing all the talking. On leaving court the big Argentine announced he would leave immediately for Saratoga Springs to resume his training grind.

EXPERT WARNS DAWES PLAN NOT CURE-ALL

Williamstown, Aug. 9.—That application of the Dawes plan to bring about, automatically, results which will render disarmament speedily possible is a restored and peaceful Europe "will not be so simple in reality as some believe" was the warning of M. Louis Aubert before the Institute of Politics here in his lecture on the reconstruction of Europe.

"But as things are set going as planned," he said, "the difficulties and political task grow gradually less." The feeling of security, he said, would increase as investors the world over take up the 800,000,000 gold mark loan and the 16,000,000 gold mark bond issue."

NEW PERMIT GRANTED FOR 17-CENT GASOLINE

Chelsea Aldermen granted the permit for Frank Goldman to establish a 10,000-gallon gasoline tank on Arlington street, Chelsea, for the sale of Mayor Quigley's 17-cent gasoline. This will be the largest of any of the gasoline tanks so far built to sell municipal gasoline. Other stations have a capacity only of 2,000 gallons.

Urges Liability Law to Check Fire Losses In the U. S.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Enactment of a personal liability law holding a man responsible for loss from fire due to his carelessness or neglect, and year-around fire prevention campaigns were urged by Frank C. Jordan, president of the American Waterworks Association, in an address today to the International Association of Fire Engineers.

Although fire departments of the average American city are much more efficient than those of Europe, fire losses here are ten times as great, he said.

"This condition is due largely to the fact that European laws hold a man responsible for loss from fire due to his carelessness or neglect," he asserted.

GEN. EDWARDS TO PROTEST ON HOSPITALS

Expressing himself as "awfully disappointed" over the "half way plans" which Brigadier-General Frank T. Hines, chief of the veterans' bureau, announces for the enlargement of ex-service men's hospitals at Rutland and Northampton, General Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the Massachusetts department, American Legion, declares he will protest the hospital situation at the approaching State Legion convention at Pittsfield.

According to General Hines' letter, provisions are being made for an increase of the beds at Rutland to a total of 400. Of this increase 87 are to be installed in the immediate future and 181 in the Fall. There are already 122 beds at the hospital.

2 DEAD, MANY CATTLE LOST IN IOWA STORM

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 19.—Two men lost their lives, many head of cattle were destroyed and property damage of hundreds of thousands of dollars was done in a terrific rainstorm in eastern Iowa last night. Practically all of the cities and towns in the storm's path were flooded. J. M. Schley and Declaude Barrett farmers near Bertram, were drowned in the swollen Big Creek.

ARGENTINE AVIATOR SMASHES HIS PLANE

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Aug. 19.—The Fokker plane of Major Zanni, Argentine 'round the world aviator, was badly damaged today while he was taking off for Canton. He will be unable to continue unless he gets a new plane.

RUM GANGS IN FIGHT, THREE INJURED

The colorful tale of a bitter battle between two gangs of bootleggers in the heart of the city was related in court today.

According to the police of the Dedham street station, the battle was fought at Decatur and Washington streets in the South End between a gang from that section and another which came over the road from Worcester in automobiles.

The visitors were aggrieved because, they claimed, after buying a lot of liquor from the Boston gentry for $800, the latter had failed to deliver it. The Boston men vainly protested that they had been held up and robbed of the liquor on their way to Worcester.

So they returned to Boston proposing to obtain cash or satisfaction. Apparently they got neither.

When the police arrived in response to a riot call three men were lying on the ground. The trio were:

Lotte Levine, twenty-seven years old, of No. 49 Cutler street, Worcester. He was stabbed in the chest and head.

Louis Hart, twenty-eight years old, of No. 953 Blue Hill avenue. His head and face was lacerated.

John Gourner, twenty-three years old, of No. 9 Genesee street. His head and body were badly battered.

All three were taken to City Hospital. Gourner and Hart were later removed to the police station as suspicious persons.

The fight was an epic, according to witnesses. The Worcester men had hardly alighted from their autos when they were pounced upon by the South End gang.

Revolvers were dispensed with, but feet and fists and knives wreaked havoc among the combatants.

CAPTAIN DIES NEAR GRAVE OF HERO SON

Newark, N. J., Aug. 19.—Word was received at the Naval Reserve Office here of the death in France of Captain Edward McClure Peters, former commander of the New Jersey battalion of Naval Reserve and more recently of Brooklyn, N. Y. He died Sunday at Rains-les-Rains, where he had lived with Mrs. Peters to be near the grave of their son in the American cemetery at Thiacourt. Captain Edward McC. Peters, Jr., was killed March, 1918, in the Toulis sector, while commanding a First Division Machine Gun Company.

MYSTERY IN APPOLLONIO'S STRANGE BEQUEST TO NURSE

MUST NOT LIVE WITH HUSBAND

Former School Board Secretary Ignores Relatives in His Will

Relatives and friends of the late Thornton D. Appollonio, secretary of the Boston School Committee for 21 years, were speculating today as to why he ignored his kin and left all his personal estate to Mrs. Mable MacLeod Duffie of Brookline, on condition that "she remain as at present, apart from her husband, and does not remarry."

Appollonio died a widower at his home, No. 118 Lancaster terrace, Brookline, on July 28, last. Mrs. Duffie lives at No. 4 Fuller street.

The bequest was disclosed in a will filed in Norfolk County Probate Court at Dedham. It leaves to Mrs. Duffie all his personal effects, clothing, furniture, jewelry and an automobile. It also creates a trust fund from which the larger part of the net income of his estate is to be paid to Mrs. Duffie in quarterly installments during her life.

Upon the death of Mrs. Duffie, the will says, or in case she shall cease to remain apart from her husband, or shall remarry, then the entire principal of the trust estate is to be paid to the Children's Hospital, No. 300 Longwood avenue, Boston, and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, No. 180 Longwood avenue.

Kid McCoy Tells Own Story of Arrest; 'Time Will Prove Me Innocent'

(Photo of Mrs. Mors by U. and A. Others by International News Reel.)

MRS. THERESA MORS, "KID McCOY" AND THE DEATH WEAPONS

Features unusual and most confusing are crowding to the front in the murder of the woman laid to the jealous rage of the former prize-fighter. Newest is that Mrs. Mors was robbed of $12,000 in jewels on the night she was slain. Despite stories he has admitted the crime, McCoy maintains his innocence. He is now a physical and mental wreck, tortured in mind and tormented by relentless prosecutors. On the left is the pistol which sent the bullets of death; on the right, the gun used by McCoy in his rampage.

LEOPOLD-LOEB HEARING IN LAST STAGE

One Remaining Witness Under Cross-Examination Today; Long Arguments Likely

Chicago, Aug. 19. (A.P.)—Execution of statory by attorneys drew a crowd to the Franks murder hearing today.

Rain served, however, to reduce to a bare dozen the scores who usually stand about to watch the arrivals of the relatives of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, co-murderers of Robert Franks.

Dr. William O. Krohn, chief alienist for the State, and the last witness, resumed the stand for further cross-examination.

Leopold and Loeb were in good spirits as they entered court after a friendly sparring match in the "bull pen."

Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, addressed Judge John R. Caverly in explanation of his remarks of yesterday when he said that as long as he was State's Attorney he would question suspects "even in violation of Constitutional rights."

"In the heat of argument," said Mr. Crowe, "I probably made an unfortunate selection of words."

It is now believed that the case will come up to Judge Caverly for decision by Tuesday. It is probable that the court will then take a week or ten days to consider the evidence.

BOSTON PRIEST ON AIR TRIP TO COAST

Father Sullivan Scheduled to Hop Off Today From Mitchel Field, L. I.

Mitchel Field, L. I., Aug. 19.—Father John J. Sullivan of Boston, chaplain for the American Aviation Corps in France during the World War, and known as the "Original Flying Parson," left Mitchel Field today in a De Haviland plane on the first lap of his trip by air to San Francisco.

Rev. J. J. Sullivan

He will stop along the way to visit parents of aviators for whom he performed the burial service in France when they fell in action.

At Chicago Father Sullivan tomorrow will be picked up by another army plane to continue his journey to the Coast. Lieutenant Elliott will return to Mitchel Field. Aviators from various army posts along the airways to the Pacific Coast will help the priest on his way.

Father Sullivan went to France with the First Army Air Service detachment that left the United States. He served through the war and earned the respect and admiration of all flying men for his work on the field.

Pension Applicants to Be Judged by Local Reports

Washington, Aug. 19 (U.N.S.)—A more liberal policy in awarding pensions to war veterans was established today by Secretary of the Interior Work.

He ordered that reports of local examining boards on the physical disability of applicants should not be set aside by boards of review except for a "cogent reason." This will make original disability reports serve as the basis for granting pensions.

GIRL SUES FOR ARM TORN OUT BY MANGLE

Charged with permitting a minor to work on a dangerous laundry machine, the Andrew Rutten Company, No. 69 Canal street, were defendants in Municipal Court before Judge David A. Lourie today.

On April 4, 1924, fourteen-year-old Gertrude Macklin of No. 43 Franklin street, Stoneham, lost her right arm in the machine, which is a mangle.

George E. Kinsman, foreman of the lace curtain manufacturing department where the accident happened, and other employes testified the girl had been warned not to work on the mangle.

The machine is of such a dangerous nature that a provision of the law has been made to cover it, which prohibits minors from working, operating or assisting on the mangle.

HEARSE GRINDS OUT HYMNS ON LONG TRIP

Brooklyn Undertaker Drives Musical Vehicle Back to Philadelphia Factory

Philadelphia, Aug. 19 (Universal).—John Petruzzi, undertaker of Brooklyn, owner of a musical hearse, has lost his natural love of music. The hearse with the musical attachment is responsible. Mr. Petruzzi brought his machine back to the manufacturers in this city where he reported that it worked too well.

The funeral director extraordinary went to his garage Saturday morning and was greeted with a storm of language from employes and told to "take that hearse out of here."

For hours the hearse had been grinding out hymns. Mr. Petruzzi tried pushing buttons, pulling stops, turning switches, but still the tunes persisted.

The garage employes then put Mr. Petruzzi and his musical hearse out in the street, where he received orders from the police to "move on."

Mr. Petruzzi mounted the driver's seat and put his foot on the starter. Slowly in rythmic swing with the solemn tunes ground out by the device that refused to stop, the final carryall moved along.

Down through Jersey the undertaker drove. At Trenton he was ordered to hurry out of town.

At last the factory was reached. A mechanic was put to work and quiet was restored.

"I am a religious man," Mr. Petruzzi said, "but I can't stand church music any longer."

"Messages From Loyal Friends Have Given Me Courage Until I Can Explain Everything."

By NORMAN SELBY (Kid McCoy)
Written Exclusively For and Copyrighted 1921 by International News Service.

By a curious coincidence Kid McCoy was knocked out in two minutes by Jack McCormack twenty-five years ago today.

Cell M-6, City Jail, Los Angeles, Aug. 19.—Everything from poetry to sport comment has been written about me since this thing happened I guess. I am innocent and the truth will out. The world has yet to hear my story and until that time all I ask is a little moral support.

It is gratifying to know that throughout this country and across the water, too, I have loyal friends.

To receive messages here from these friends has given me courage and fortitude.

"MOTHER—GOD BLESS HER."

I expect a few people are wondering what I am thinking about. Well, a fellow here thinks mostly of those dear to him. My mother—God bless her—I have thought often of her —those last few days, and my friends. I can think of them. No one can stop me thinking of my friends.

One old friend of mine in Denver wants to know if I have changed my philosophy of life. He says ten years ago in Denver I said that one should push aside worry and anger, live the philosophic, the well ordered life, and find happiness.

I want him and the world to know my philosophy of life has not changed.

I will believe it's the best policy to meet troubles with a smile—if one can. There is sunshine behind every cloud and the sooner one tries to push back the clouds, the better for all.

CALLS LOEB "UPSTART."

I want all my friends to know that I am still the "Kid" McCoy of the olden days—I have gone along life's highways and byways and through some strange experiences, but I have not changed.

It's a funny old world. Did you notice what that young Loeb in Chicago did. Sent me a message thanking me for grabbing some of the space on the front pages of the newspapers — the young upstart. Well, I have no return message for him, and I don't like his nerve. There is nothing in common between Loeb and me.

I am feeling all okay today and I know—aided by the courage inspired by my friends—I will soon again be "the real McCoy."

BANDITS POSE AS MESSENGERS IN MATTAPAN

Posing as messengers with an emergency telegram, two youths carrying revolvers forced their way into the house at No. 87 Deering road, Mattapan, where they held up and robbed Richard Cohen, first floor tenant, and a friend, John J. Quinlan, of New Bedford.

Cohen, awakened from sleep by the ringing of the front door bell, was requested through the speaking tube to accept delivery of a telegram. He hurried to the entrance. Because he had on pajamas, he opened the door only part way.

Shoulders were thrown against it and he was nearly thrown off his feet.

BOTH PRESENT GUNS.

Calling Cohen by name, two young men were standing before him each with a leveled revolver. Warned to make no outcry under threat that they would shoot to kill, Cohen was forced into a corner.

Quinlan, guest of Cohen, heard the commotion from his sleeping room and went downstairs to investigate. He likewise was commanded to keep silence and to take a place beside Cohen.

Selecting Cohen as their first victim, the men commanded him to lower his already unraised left hand and "shell it for examination. Cohen wilted. The command was again voiced and Cohen complied.

RING VALUED AT $1,100.

He was wearing a diamond ring valued he said at $1,100. No sooner had they taken the jewel than they demanded and were given a forty dollar watch belonging to Cohen. In addition, they took $160 in cash that had reposed in Cohen's pajama pocket.

Another ring, with Knights of Columbus insignia, was taken from Quinlan. Later search of Quinlan's sleeping room netted the thieves $5 in cash. The ring is valued at twenty-five dollars.

Police of the Jamaica Plain station are trying to apprehend second-story workers who looted the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Milton, No 40 St. John street, Jamaica Plain.

Making their way through an upper window, the thieves gained entrance while the Miltons were away on a week-end trip and stole jewelry valued at $1,000. Included in the stolen goods are a diamond necklace and a diamond studded lady's watch worth $500.

KID M'COY HAS INSANE FIT IN CELL

ed a mysterious package the morning after his former wife died, and that Dagmar Dalgren, McCoy's eighth wife, created a scene at the Nottingham apartments, where Mrs. Mors was killed.

Miss Dalgren, a dancer and motion picture actress, was said by police to have become hysterical and entered the apartment house. She was escorted by police from the building.

A report that Mrs. Mors had left $81,000 in life insurance to Mors was to be probed at a conference of insurance men holding various policies issued to the slain woman. Mors under the terms of a will dated August 4, 1921, executed in New York city, was left the estate, estimated as worth $100,000 to $200,000.

FINED AND SENTENCED AFTER AUTO ACCIDENT

Gloucester, Aug. 19.—John J. Welch, of Roxbury, charged with operating an automobile so as to endanger lives and with running away after an accident without revealing his identity, was fined $100 in the local court on the first complaint and sentenced to two months on the second. He appealed. It is alleged that on June 8, he ran into an automobile containing four persons, Miss Minalla Franch of Allston, who conducts a beauty parlor in Tremont street, Boston, one of the occupants of his car, was injured.

WOMAN HURT IN AUTO CRASH; DRIVER IS HELD

Mrs. Virginia Langton of No. 7 Water street, East Weymouth, suffered fracture of the skull and other injuries today when an automobile in which she and her husband were riding was in collision with another machine on the State road, Hingham. J. J. Peters of No. 20 Bigelow street, Brighton, driver of the other car, was thrown through his own windshield. He was charged with operating an automobile while intoxicated.

PROTESTS SMOKING BY WOMEN IN STREETS

Paris, Aug. 19 (A. P.).—A protest is being raised by the Paris press against smoking by women in the streets.

"After the theatre," expostulates one writer, "it has become an ordinary sight to see a woman produce her cigarette and puff away as she strolls homeward, just like the men. It is mostly foreign women, however, who set this fashion from graceful example, and we hope they will not find many followers among their French sisters."

ARMY READY TO DO ITS BIT FOR 'N.E.B.' WEEK

General Brewster Offers Services of First Corps Troops and Bands

General Andre W. Brewster, commander of the First Corps Area of the United States Army, has offered the services of troops or bands as an aid in the plans for New England Week, which is to be celebrated from September 15 to Sept. 20. Participation by the government in the New England Week movement is welcomed as a fine stimulant for the general program.

The demand for copies of the official New England Week pamphlet has been so great that it has been found necessary to print thousands of extra copies. It was intended to print 25,000 copies for distribution among manufacturers, merchants, retailers, large grocers and various organizations, but 41,000 copies have been required, and requests are still coming in.

A big lodge of "New England Workers" is to be formed in connection with New England Week. Its lists are now being worked out, and it is expected that this movement will be headed by former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston.

The Dennison Manufacturing Company has notified the committee that it will donate 100,000 tags for New England Week.

U. S. BANKERS IN EUROPE SPEED GERMAN LOAN

New York, Aug. 19.—With the successful conclusion of the inter-allied conference, American bankers began speeding up the machinery for flotation of their share of the $200,000,000 international loan to Germany upon which operations of the Dawes plan will hinge.

Preparations for underwriting have been started with prospects that ratification of the London protocol by France and Germany will be followed by an early sale of the loan. The offering is expected in October.

J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont and George Whitney, all partners of J. P. Morgan & Co., who will head the American loan syndicate, are now in England. Other bankers expected to participate and now either in Europe or on their way there, are Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank and Everett D. Sewney, vice-president of the First National Bank of New York.

CURLEY RAISES PAY OF STREET BOARD

A salary increase of $1,500 has been granted to Chairman John H. L. Noyes of the Street Commission by Mayor Curley, raising his compensation from $4,500 to $6,000.

Increases of $500 each have also been granted to the other members of the commission, John J. O'Connor and Charles T. Harding, both of whom will in the future draw $4,500.

The Council will act on the Mayor's amendment to the city ordinances, allowing the increases, at their next meeting September 8.

The Mayor has contended for some time that the salaries of several heads of departments have been extremely low for the class of work they are assigned to perform.

OLD FASHIONED GIRL, FLAPPER, IN RACE

Girls of All Sorts Entered in American's Charming Girl Test

Will a flapper with bobbed locks win the Boston American's CHARMING girl tournament, which carries with it a week's free trip to Atlantic City, beginning September 2?

Or will an "old-fashioned" girl, who declines to permit her lovely tresses to be shorn, be the winner?

Frankly, we confess we do not know. The task of deciding will rest entirely with the judges. We DO know, however, that girls and women in both classes are entered in the American's tournament which will determine who is the most alluring girl in Greater Boston.

GIRLS OF ALL SORTS.

Women who spurn rouge and lipstick are among the entrants, and the snapshots and studio photographs being sent in indicate that the bobbers haven't induced them to listen to the click of the shears.

On the other hand many girls with bright bobs are entered and their friends expect them to land that wonder trip which carries with it more fun than could possibly be packed into a week under any other conditions.

Some of the most recent entries in the American's tournament include: Miss Zilpha Anstrey, 18, No. 73 Mountain street, Woburn; Miss Mildred B. King, 18, No. 327 Main street, Charlestown; Miss Elsie Sharpies, 21, No. 20 Bailey road, Huntingdale; Alice Dillon, 18, No. 1414 Pleasant street, Fall River; Hazel L. Wolfe, 18, No. 26 Stearns avenue, Medford; Gertrude Perry, 16, No. 90 Ford street, Gardner Plains; and Lena Shapiro, 16, No. 128 Sumwall street, Roxbury.

The girl who wins the American's CHARMING girl tournament will be treated like a queen while at Atlantic City. A suite at the fashionable Hotel Traymore is awaiting her. Without question the Traymore is the last word in luxury.

ENTRIES CLOSE SATURDAY.

Don't forget, girls, that the tournament closes next Saturday at noon. No entries will be received after that time. Also, don't forget to send a photographic or snapshot with entry coupon. An entry is not complete without a picture. The judges will make a preliminary selection of 24 girls from photographs submitted. They will make the final choice from this group of 25.

WASHINGTON'S BUST HAS OFFICIALS GUESSING

Washington, Aug. 18.—Pending an investigation, officials of the Library of Congress have arrested whether steps will be taken to counter the French bust of General Washington missing from the library for more than a half century and said to have been found in New York.

When the bust was taken the library was identified in the social building and none of the living curators of property or books made any record pertaining to the subject.

So far the library has no information except news dispatches regarding the discovery of the bust by Mitchell Kennedy, a New York art collector, and its sale to Henry E. Huntington.

LOTHARIO OF PUBLIC GARENS SENTENCED

The Lothario of the Boston Public Gardens was to Municipal Court today for kissing and dancing even without their consent. Isaac Wolravar, the Garden's gardener, testified that William Little, twenty-five years old, of Common street, South End, had annoyed at least a dozen women in the last two weeks.

"Last night he kissed the shoulder of a married woman wearing a side-off gown," said Wolraven. Judge Lourie gave Little four months.

12 PLANES TO FLY AT NEWPORT CELEBRATION

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—It was announced today that the navy would send 12 planes into the air for the army and navy air demonstration at Fort Adams tomorrow. There will be six bombers and six torpedo planes dropping dummies and it is hoped to secure the materials for the laying of a smoke screen. This is in addition to the army Martin monoplane with parachute jumping.

SHIP'S BARBER ANXIOUS TO SHAVE PRINCE

London, Aug. 19 (Universal).—The most anxious man aboard the liner Berengaria is the head barber who has large hopes of being able to hang the three ostrich feather crest of the Prince of Wales over the door of the ship's barber shop—if only the Prince will consent to have one shave in the shop during the crossing.

In the meantime the board of directors of the Cunard Company is holding daily sittings at Liverpool trying to anticipate every possible contingency which can arise and make the crossing perfect for the Prince.

The Prince will take every meal, including breakfast, in the public saloon, and after leaving Southampton will insist by his own behavior in making the ship's company realize he wants to be considered an ordinary voyager.

However, this democratic attitude will not be in evidence when the Prince leaves London early Saturday morning by motor for Southampton. His embarkation will be as speedy and secret as possible.

Among his fellow passengers will be Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten, Admiral Halsey and Captain Frank Lascelles, who are members of his party; Lady Diana Duff-Cooper and husband, Grace La Rue, Hale Hamilton, Haley Fiske, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Dimont, Sir Thomas H. Graham Bernonde, George C. Prendergrassen, Robert P. Lamont and Charles I. Landis.

Big Sturgeon Harpooned

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 19.—Captain Amable Hubert harpooned a 260-pound sturgeon, the largest taken from the Saco River in a number of years. The fish was 5 feet long

4 LIQUOR-LADEN AUTOS SEIZED IN DORCHESTER

For the third time in succession, the Boston police squad cleaned up on alcohol seizures today when they nabbed four men in four automobiles in four different sections of Dorchester.

The men, who were fined $50 each in Dorchester court, were booked as Harry Myers, Campbell avenue, Revere; 40 gallons; Joseph Morari, Middlesex street, South End, 25 gallons; John Jouriskie, Spring street, Stoughton, 30 gallons, and George D'Amato, Liberty avenue, Medford, 40 gallons.

The officers who made the captures were Garett, Higgins, Landow, Toles, Welby, McGinnis and Finche. On Saturday and again yesterday they made seizures, that of yesterday being one of the largest in Boston.

LOW DEATH RATE PREVAILS IN THE PHILIPPINES

Manila, Aug. 19 (A.P.).—The death rate in the Philippine Islands during the first nine months of 1924 was 17.5 per thousand which is the lowest ever recorded, according to a report of the Philippine Health Service. The 1923 death rate was 3 per cent. lower than that of 1922 and 14 per cent. lower than in 1921.

There has been a corresponding decrease in the infant mortality rate, toward which the insular government has given much effort.

Health officials attribute the decrease in the death rate to increased efficiency of the health organization, improved sanitation of populous centers, and increased interest in health education of the masses.

OUSTED BUTCH GYPSIES ENCAMP NEAR PEABODY

Driven out of Saugus by Fire Warden Ralph E. Berrett, the Dutch tribe of gypsies pitched camp on the Newburyport turnpike near Peabody. It is the third time within two weeks that the tribe has been forced to move. They arrived in Lynn about a month ago to settle the feud caused by the refusal of Anna Smith to join the Stokes tribe after her marriage to Prince Steve Stokes.

They were driven from their camp at Highland avenue, Lynn, and settled in Saugus.

A week ago the board of health and selectmen of Saugus inspected the camp and ordered the tribe to leave, declaring conditions unsanitary.

20 SUICIDE TRIED BY DAD WHO SHOT SON

Rockland, Aug. 19.—Grief because he had shot his son, drove Patsy Aborazzo to a second attempt at suicide.

He leaped from the roof of a barn, breaking one leg and suffering other minor injuries.

Aborazzo, duck hunting late Friday night, aimed a charge of buckshot. His little son, Louis, was in line of the charge and was killed.

AUTO VICTIM IS LEFT DYING IN ROADWAY

The Metropolitan district police have enlisted the aid of the police of surrounding cities and towns in an effort to apprehend the driver of an automobile which struck a man and knocked down William Lucian Bell of No. 209 Blue Hill Parkway, inflicting injuries that the doctors believe will prove fatal, then disappearing in the darkness.

Lucianelli was found lying in the roadway about 200 yards distant from Mattapan square by P. L. Currier of No. 112 Park street, Dorchester, who was returning to his home, when his headlights revealed the body stretched out in the roadway. Currier took the victim to the City Hospital, where he was found to be suffering from multiple injuries, internal and otherwise, in addition to a fractured skull.

PRINCESS IN U. S. HUNTS FOR JOB

Marie de Bourbon Anxious to Be Independent Like the American Girls

New York, Aug. 19.—The story of Cinderella has been reversed.

There lives in the heart of busy New York a little princess who a working girl should be.

She is the Princess Marie de Bourbon, daughter of Prince Francis de Bourbon of Madrid, Spain. Her grandfather was the Infante Enriques of Spain, who was killed in a duel with the French Duke de Montpensier. His wife was the sister of Queen Elizabeth of Spain.

AVOIDS SOCIETY.

Royalty, to New York's best set, is as invigorating as good wine. Yet, right in their midst, at the Hotel Ashton, No. 1312 Madison avenue, lives little Princess Marie. She has lived there a year and was there before New York society discovered her.

When they did, the rush of limousines carrying invitations to the Princess threatened to disrupt traffic. To all, the little girl with China blue eyes and gorgeous auburn hair which she recently bobbed, remained in her soft voice: "No, I wish to work, to have employment, not to know your society."

However, this democratic attitude will not be in evidence when the Prince leaves London early Saturday morning by motor for Southampton. His embarkation will be as speedy and secret as possible.

Among his fellow passengers will be Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten, Admiral Halsey and Captain Frank Lascelles, who are members of his party; Lady Diana Duff-Cooper and husband, Grace La Rue, Hale Hamilton, Haley Fiske, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Dimont, Sir Thomas H. Graham Bernonde, George C. Prendergrassen, Robert P. Lamont and Charles I. Landis.

HARVARD BRIDGE PROBLEM UP TO CAMBRIDGE

Commission Must Maintain, Repair and Police Part Open to Traffic

The Metropolitan District Commission will stand pat on the Attorney-General's decision that the Cambridge Bridge Commission is responsible for the policing, maintenance and repairs of portions of the Harvard bridge left open to traffic while permanent reconstruction is under way.

Chairman James A. Bailey of the District Commission said today that as far as his commission is concerned the controversy between the Mayors of Cambridge and Boston and the District Commission over repair work is closed.

"It is on and Cambridge," he said, "have the right to close the bridge entirely to traffic if they consider it dangerous to the public."

The act requiring the Metropolitan District Commission to strengthen, repave and repair the bridge at an expense of $600,000, he pointed out, provides that when the structure has been completed, all the powers and authority as well as liability now conferred in the Cambridge Bridge Commission will be vested in the Metropolitan District Commission.

SHORTWEIGHT GERMAN BAKERS SEEK RELEASE

Berlin, Aug. 19 (A.P.)—There are a lot of master bakers of Germany in jail for decreasing the size of their loaves of bread last year and increasing the selling price. This fact came to light here during the annual convention of the German Association of Master Bakers, when a movement was launched to bring about the release of the imprisoned members.

It was decided to ask the government to grant an amnesty for all the bakers who got into trouble during the inflation period when the "bakers themselves had great difficulties in making both ends meet and often did not know from where their next meal was coming."

DAVIS TO SPEAK IN HOME STATE LABOR DAY

Locust Valley, N. Y., Aug. 19.—John W. Davis will start his long Westward trek with a second address in his home State. It will be delivered at Wheeling, W. Va., on Labor Day at a meeting under the auspices of the Ohio Valley Trade and Labor Assembly.

BROCKTON PAINTER IS FOUND IN HOSPITAL HERE

Brockton, Aug. 19.—Fear that Henry W. Patterson, fifty-eight, a painter, of No. 39 Spring street, had disappeared in Boston, where he went for an operation last Thursday, was allayed when James A. Mellon, business agent of the Local Painters' Union, found him in the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary.

Manchester, N. H., Spends More on 'Gas' Than Books

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 19.—Manchester people spend more for gasoline in a year than for education, figures announced by local statisticians reveal. The per capita cost of education during 1923 was $8.25, while the per capita cost of gasoline for the family flivver reached $14.36.

PRESSMEN'S CHIEF TO SUPPORT DEMOCRATS

New York, Aug. 19.—Major George L. Berry of Tennessee, president of the International Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, will support the candidacies of John W. Davis and Gov. Charles W. Bryan, rather than the La Follette-Wheeler ticket.

Major Berry was a candidate for vice-president at the Democratic convention.

JOKER TRAILED BY POSTAL SLEUTHS

Man Who Mailed Marriage Intentions of Another Sought in Lawrence

Lawrence, Aug. 19.—Some time last week an individual, who might well be crowned as the star "boob" of practical jokers, apparently enjoyed considerable merriment at the expense of a local young man and woman.

Perhaps the joker is still grinning broadly, but the grin is destined to disappear if the local postal authorities succeed in ascertaining the identity of the person who sent through the mails approximately forty letters, purporting to announce the coming marriage of John J. Burgess of Holly street, to Miss Mary Hayes of Saratoga street, both of this city.

DO YOU KNOW
the difference between
GREEN and RIPE olives?

A GREAT many people do not know that there are two kinds of olives. These two varieties are not only widely different in character, but are grown in different parts of the world.

There are ripe olives and green olives.

Ripe olives are purple or black in color. They do not taste like green olives, with which most people are familiar.

Green olives, as their name indicates, are olive-green in color. They are firm in texture—not soft. They are picked when green, cured when green, and bottled when green.

Green olives are grown in Spain—nowhere else. The world's production of green olives is grown on a piece of land only thirty-odd miles square. This is the only place on earth where olives will grow to a suitable size and flavor for eating before they ripen.

Green olives are, and always have been, wholesome and nutritious besides being the finest of appetizers.

The green olive is not a new fruit. It has been eaten for centuries.

When you buy olives, be sure to say to your grocer, "I want a bottle of green olives." Incidentally, green olives are always packed in glass—never in tin.

PROVINCETOWN MEN TO WEAR SKIRTS IN 'STRIKE'

By DON ALLEN

Provincetown, Aug. 19.—Provincetown, that is as far as the male population goes, is not so slow; in so far the the feminine contingent is concerned it never WAS slow or even halting.

But the men, headed by A. T. Powe, retired sea captain, have grown so tired of seeing women dressed as men, that almost the entire male population of this tip-o' the Cape town has decided upon what they term a "Reverse Day" all during which they (the men) will dress as women.

Provincetown has long been known as the "home of the knickerbocker." And this year the girls, and women, too, for that matter, have been going the knicks one better by wearing trousers, especially the wide, sailor-like trousers that blossom out as they reach the shoes. It has grown so here that it is almost impossible to tell a man from a woman; so close are the boyish bobs, the shingle bobs, the men's haircut and the trousers.

THEY WERE ALL GIRLS.

The writer, like the fireman on vacation who insisted upon hanging around the firehouse, went to a picture show here one night last week. The cinema (if one may call it that) was packed until it resembled the proverbial sardine can.

In the row in front of us were three hes or shes—we couldn't tell which until one of them spoke and asked for a portion of popcorn. They were all girls, yet they looked like lads of say fifteen or sixteen. Their hair was as closely clipped as a boy's after his first visit to the village barber shop; their necks were shaven after a manner that would do credit to a N. Y. N. H. & H. brakeman; their hands and arms were tanned almost to a Colorado Chara shade, and their features were hardened by their haircuts.

They sat there speechless (and we were sure they were women), although their knicks and trousers and shingle-bobs belied the fact. Finally one of them spoke and her question of "May I have some popcorn?" came in the sweet voice of feminine youth.

"Well," said A. T. Powe, better known to all the residents as "Tom," "I'll be ——!" And the word he used describes accurately what they have been trying to do to the Mississippi River for years and years.

CONFERS WITH WIFE.

And, like a true blue Provincetowner, he left the theatre. And, just as naturally, he went right home, there being no other place to go at nine-thirty.

"I," he blustered to his wife, known to everyone as "Bessie," "have just seen the Julian Elkings triplets or else I'm crazy."

"Well, Tom," she answered, "you know a lotta folks said we were both crazy when we married."

"That's got nuthin' t' do with it," he roared back, "but if women here has th' right t' dress as men, why haven't th' men th' same right?"

She didn't know, either.

And that was the moment the reverse day was hatched or born or whatever one might call it. It has been in the incubator ever since and has grown to be a husky youngster. Down on the broad veranda float they call 'em porches down here) it was caused and discussed all during the sunset hour.

And finally it was agreed that on a certain day, not yet set, that all or nearly all, the men in Provincetown would dress as women.

"I can borry Betsy's waist and skirt," announced one.

"An' I kin git inter one of Rose's Mother Hubbards," announced a three-hundred pounder who spent his youth and early manhood chasing whales.

WON'T WEAR BONNET.

"I'll be dodburned if I wears a bonnet," announced a third, "I'll try a slip fit, a slip an' a silhouette dress, because no one will look at any bow-legs, anyway, but no ha's with no flowers on it for me."

And now they have interested the artist colony up here, they have agreed with alacrity; in fact, most of them would agree to almost ANYTHING could they but get a mention in the newspapers. And they probably will when the great day arrives for their will be photographs upon photographs and for once this old town will see some real pictures.

The men of the town are keeping the date of Reverse day a profound secret so that the feminine contingent cannot figure on any reprisal measures.

SCOTS AREN'T MEAN, SAYS LAUDER

His Race Just a Thrifty People, Famous Comedian Declares

By SIR HARRY LAUDER.

London, Aug. 19.—Let me say, in the first place, who are not the mean men. They are not public entertainers, they are not comedians, and they are certainly not Scotsmen.

Neither can meanness be attributed to men who are fond of work. They are industrious and they feel that they must forge ahead and make money, but they are not mean.

After all, it is the hard worker who does the most good in his day and generation. The best bee in the swarm is the one that brings the most honey to the hive. Work is a gift; those who do not possess the aptitude for it defend their laziness by calling it the artistic temperament, and labelling the industrious as the meanest men in the world.

I suppose we shall never get away from the taunt of meanness against Scotsman. It is one of those jokes that have come to stay—like wireless and porridge. In the remote past some one made a joke at the expense of a cautious Scotsman, and this joke has spread all over the world and persisted to this day.

I suppose that if at that time some body had said that an Englishman's chief characteristic was his meanness, the joke would have had the same remarkable run, and we should still be hearing of jokes about an Englishman and his money.

In considering the question of meanness one must have regard to the mentality of the person who is looking for economy. There is a shrewd suspicion that the meanness of all men is the man who is most outspoken in his criticism of Scotsmen generally. I have never known any such critic wandering about with pockets emptied by charity.

It cannot be argued that any one nation is more mean than the rest of the nations. Meanness is common to all nationals to be found, but it is, I believe, uncommon in all countries. I have bought bananas in the West Indies from natives, and when they have been a penny each I have been content to get them for twopence. If the hawker is an Irishman and not an Italian, he is more generous.

Some years ago I had an experience of Irish "generosity" which is, in my mind, taken some beating. Four of us hired a jaunting-car for an hour's jaunt into the country. Our jarvey had a pretty keen type of humor. It took him an hour to drive us. After he had been driving the hour, and we expected to be back home, we found that we had reached the farthest point from our starting place. At this moment our jarvey pulled up, looked round at us, and with a triumphant air, announced: "Boys, you time's up. You'll have to hire me for another hour to take ye home or git out and walk back."

One of the meanest men I have ever met was an American. In America, you must know, you can send telegrams to your friends and they have to pay the charge at the other end. Fortunately for some of our celebrities that does not obtain here. This American sent a telegram to his mother congratulating her on her birthday—"Collect."

Of course, I have met a Scotsman who has thought twice before paying more for an article than its market value. There is the man who came to London and bought a packet of pins. The salesman told him the sheet contained a thousand for a penny. On his return he was asked what he thought of London, and he replied that it was a city of swindlers. "I bought a thousand pins for a penny. I took me all night to count and recount them in the train, but there were only 998. If you ever go to London, don't trust the Londoners."

Probably the best definition of a reputed mean man is this: "He will continue to give his friends all they want because if he did they would take everything." I would call a man mean who lived unto himself alone. That is about a homeless proposition alive.

A cautious man is one who takes some hard thinking to think the right things at the right time. I have heard it said that I have been given much free publicity by the reports about Scottish meanness. The value of such to me I estimate at about eighteenpence a joke—because the advertisement was not true. The truth is that no Scotsman is mean; he is only saving, and is naturally thrifty. He gets fun, too, out of the cautious life—fun in watching the recklessness of others.

CROWDS SEE MAN DIE IN AUTO

WHERE DEATH CAME SUDDENLY

While being taken home during a spell of illness, due to acute indigestion, Frederick W. Tindell, insurance company employee, slipped suddenly in the floor of the machine as it was crossing Winthrop Square, and was found to be dead.

DEATH STRIKES DOWN MAN IN AUTO

Life's uncertainty was demonstrated dramatically to the crowds in Winthrop square today when an elderly man sitting chatting in a parked automobile suddenly slumped to the floor and died.

Later he was identified as Frederick W. Tindell, aged two years old, an employe of an insurance company with office at No. 191 Milk street. He lived in a bolgate house at No. 47 Milford street, South End.

Death was caused by acute indigestion. Stricken while at work, Tindell was being taken to his home in the automobile of Thomas McCaskey, of No. 11 Pond street, Revere, also an employe of the insurance company.

Thomas Hresnahan of Lynn, another fellow employe, was at the wheel. In Winthrop square to pass Tindell — Jack getting tired and stopped. Immediately the older man tumbled to the floor.

As the automobile naturally was registered in the name of Mahoney, the latter's friends were blamed entirely for nearly an hour after the report of the sudden death was sent out. Mahoney, however, is a much younger man. He appeared to claim the car. The body was taken to the North Grove street morgue.

Mr. Tindell came to America from England seventeen years ago. As parently he had no relatives in this country.

SUFFRAGIST SECRETARY OF LA FOLLETTE FORCES

Lincoln

Miss Florence A. Lincoln, prominent in suffrage and other women's organizations, has accepted the position of secretary of the Massachusetts La Follette - Wheeler campaign committee.

Miss Lincoln, who is 58 years old, was one of the leading workers for suffrage in this state. In 1921 she polled a heavy vote as a candidate for the Boston City Council, with the indorsement of women's organizations and the Good Government Association. She is now on the La Follette-Wheeler electors in this State.

CLOTHING FIRM SUES TO BAR PICKETING

Clothing Workers' Locals 171, 172 and 175, the organizations of the striking Workers of America and the joint board of that organization are in Boston and are named as defendants in an equity proceeding instituted today by Peary Brothers Company, manufacturers of ready-made clothing.

The company alleges the defendants have caused its employes to break their contracts and leave their employment.

It is further charged that union clothing workers have congregated near the company's plant and intimidated workers on their way to the mill. Picketing is charged.

Because of the railroad strike the company says it closed its plant August 11. It asks that the defendants be compelled to cease their acts and particularly to give up picketing. The case will come up before Judge Pelt in the Superior Court tomorrow.

At a meeting of the executive committee of unions of the cloak, suit and skirt makers belonging to the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union a date for a strike this week of 1,500 employes was set, but not made public, owing to a conference this morning with the contractors.

Members of the unions will not be informed of the date set for the strike until the night before it becomes effective.

FARMERS' WOES DUE TO G. O. P., SAYS BRYAN

Acceptance Speech Blames G. O. P. for Agricultural Distress of Nation

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 19.—In a speech which was in the main a bid for votes of dirt farmers, Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska accepted the Democratic nomination for the Vice-Presidency.

His acceptance speech was an ardent indictment of the Republican party, which, declared the governor, had failed to keep faith with the country.

Asking the support of all Progressives, he said the Democratic platform was worthy of the backing of all forward-looking men and women and the head of the ticket, John W. Davis, deserving of all confidence.

NEEDS OF FARMERS.

Governor Bryan devoted most of his speech to a discussion of the needs of agriculture.

"Four years ago," he said, "at the time the Republican administration came into power, the farmers and stock raisers were receiving good prices for their produce. There was a market for farm products.

"The farmers were among the first to feel the effects of legislation and administrative action which changed the condition of the farmers from prosperity to adversity, and caused the farmers' bank balance to disappear and mortgages on his farm to take its place."

He placed the blame for this condition on the following Republican policies: Relaxation of the surtax rates, adoption of a high tariff, and the deflation policy which resulted in the retirement of farm funds.

DEMOCRACY'S REMEDIES.

He listed the following measures, guaranteed by the Democratic party, as sure to bring relief: Lower tariff rates; reverse administration of the Federal reserve system; lower rail and water freight rates; development of deep waterways from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic coasts; development of water power in Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and Florida; better and more uniform warehouse laws; an export corporation to sell surplus farm products; revision of the tax laws away from the Mellon plan.

Dealing with the labor problem, he declared the record of the Democrats was eminent of their interest in that question.

"The refusal of the present Republican administration to permit the railway mail employes to receive a living wage was unjust and unjust. It illustrates the fact that the Republican economy program is at the expense of labor."

Pardons for Food Rioters

Berlin, Aug. 19 (U. The bill applies to all food crimes except in cases where murder was committed.

$100,000 SUIT SETTLED BY MISS POILLON

Celebrated Woman Vindicated, Says Counsel, in Charge Against Rich Man

New York, Aug. 19 (Universal)—Katherine Poillon, of the celebrated Poillon sisters, and William M. Flattmann, wealthy silk dealer and clubman, settled their controversy out of court.

Miss Poillon had sued Mr. Flattmann for $100,000 damages, charging that he had subjected her to a brutal attack in his apartment. When the suit was filed Mr. Flattmann's attorneys said it was "palpably a fraud."

Attorney Herman Zoikow, counsel for Miss Poillon, now announces that a satisfactory settlement has been made which vindicates his client.

PARLEY FAILS TO END STRIKE IN WALTHAM

Chamber of Commerce Seeks to Have Opposing Factions Get Together

Another futile meeting of the officials of the Waltham Watch Company and the representatives of the 2,300 striking employes of the concern was held today.

At its conclusion the strike leaders said, "We will stick to the end." A member of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration was present.

The 2,300 walked out a week ago Saturday when the company tried to inaugurate wage reductions. They not only don't want the reductions, but seek recognition of the right to organize and the restoration of jobs to the strike leaders discharged in 1922.

The COOLNESS of the NORTH WOODS is in it — and a refreshing dryness like that of Mountain Air

PALE—"dry"—like champagne in color—agleam with sparkling vitality—piquant, yet mellow—distinctive in flavor because it is made from real Jamaica ginger, "Canada Dry" is the most delightfully refreshing beverage you have ever tasted.

The world's markets are ravaged for special sun-cured ginger root—from over the seven seas come the ingredients that give this famous old ginger ale its distinctive color, flavor and quality.

Distinctive is the word to use, because "Canada Dry" is not at all like the ordinary ginger ale with which you are familiar.

A new kind of ginger ale

It is different in color—different in flavor—different in the way it is carbonated—different in its blending. As a matter of fact, the formula from which "Canada Dry" is made is known to only three men. This formula is handed down from father to son. It is one of the most carefully guarded commercial secrets in the world.

Because "Canada Dry" is real ginger ale and is made from real Jamaica ginger, it mixes delightfully with other beverages—it does not bite the tongue or burn the lips—it has none of that cloyingly sweet, syrupy taste that characterizes ordinary ginger ale—it leaves no "brassy" after-taste or recurring "back kick," as some people call it.

Once you try it—once you know its delicate, alluring, intriguing flavor—you will never be satisfied with any other ginger ale you have ever tasted. Its purity and quality make it especially cooling and refreshing on hot days. It is a safe summer-time beverage even for children.

Now sold in this city

The same "Canada Dry" that has created such a sensation in New York is now sold in this city. You can purchase it at the most exclusive clubs and hotels and from almost all grocers, druggists, confectioners and delicatessens.

Try it soon! A delicious treat awaits you just around the corner.

STATE TREASURER JOINS 'I PLAY SAFE' CLUB

State Treasurer James Jackson has joined the Boston American I PLAY SAFE Club. He endorses it in the following letter:

Editor, American:

Enclosed you will find my pledge to the 1924 Drivers' Club of the American. I think it is a splendid idea and heartily endorse the same. Please accept my application. I think it is a splendid idea and heartily endorse the same.

James Jackson

The danger of speeding on the road was brought to my attention in a most tragic manner when returning from a meeting in Danvers. I arrived at a spot on the Newburyport turnpike a few minutes after a big car had turned turtle. A woman was killed and two men, whom I carried to the Lynn Hospital in my car were seriously injured.

That night, on returning to Boston, I sent notice to my campaign workers in all sections of the State to take care to drive safely. In my opinion, as the father of seven children, no pelf, the nomination, or even the governorship, is as important as the life of a human being, especially a little child.

(Signed) JAMES JACKSON.

JUST SIGN YOUR NAME.

There is no fee connected with the I PLAY SAFE Club. Just sign your name to the pledge and mail it with a two-cent stamp to the Boston American office and the Club emblem will be mailed to you. Or call at the office and exchange your signed pledge for an emblem.

A book of interest to all I PLAY SAFE Club members as well as other drivers is being distributed by the Safety First League. It is called "Safety for Twenty Million Automobile Drivers," and was written by the league president, Joseph Grendahl.

Mr. Grendahl points out that the man on foot does not average six feet per second. A motor car traveling 10 miles an hour goes 14.3 feet per second; 15 miles an hour means 22 feet per second, and 35 miles and hour is 41 feet per second.

The risk the pedestrian takes, if drivers are not thoughtful and careful, and the dangers the careless driver forces into pedestrians, is apparent. Few drivers realize the difference in the space covered in a short time by an automobile as compared with a person on foot.

APPEAL TO INDIVIDUALS

The writer asked three thousand drivers the question, "How would you get out of a wet and slippery street car track when coming down hill or on the level?" Only a few knew the proper answer and the majority said, "Put on brakes."

It is to check the thoughtlessness of average drivers that the Boston American I PLAY SAFE CLUB is organized. The careful drivers, who believe that lives and limbs are more precious than time, must bring pressure to bear on their reckless fellow-drivers. THE I PLAY SAFE emblem is intended to appeal to the individual consciences of the hundreds of thousands of motor car drivers in New England.

Hundreds are signing pledges daily. Some signers are:

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

PA I used to my dad last nite, what is Con-Tent?

A very fair archile, Bobbie, said he. It means being satisfied with what is.

But wasn't if you aint got no lot or no house or nothing, I sed. How can you be Con-Tent then?

It dont that kind of Lot, Bobbie, said Pa. I mean, was I say your Lot, yure wisdum in life, said Pa. I mean if you are a litel boy you shud be satisfied with a litel bag, & if yez are a big man the what I am, said Pa, you shud be glad you are such, & if you are to be the King of Abby dabby, Bobbie, said Pa. Do you follow me, Bobbie? said Pa.

I dont think so, Pa. Our teacher was saying that the first thing us kids shud larn is to be Con-Tented with the life of a litel boy.

That is all rite exsept you are litel sayeth, Bobbie, said Pa, but when you are to be 18 years old, Bobbie, said Pa, you must not be permitted to be satisfied with anything, said Pa. You must always try to do better & injoy more than you did the day before, Bobbie, said Pa. Thus do we grow toward the stars, Bobbie, Pa sed. Thats why I am a big & fit to be grate, like what I am, Bobbie, sed Pa.

Or I, Bobbie, sed Ma. I mite as well be in on this Bob ate party, sed Ma.

You are a grate one all rite, Ma, I sed, and you are bufful also, too, I sed.

Hmm yure litel part, Bobbie, sed Ma. No wonder I have a feeling of Con-Tent wen I see my preshus litel son, sed Ma.

& yure lovable husband, sed Pa. Well may you be Con-Tented with yure husband, sed Pa.

Why aint everybody Con-Tented? I sed to my dad.

Well, Bobbie, sed Pa, it is trew that Nater has not done so much for sum peepul as she has for others, sed Po. Sum peepul has in growing noses & hair lips & Cross eyes & bow legs, etc., sed Pa, & thats how it often quite sold all the way thru, Bobbie, sed Pa, like a bowling ball, sed Pa. Sum peepul, Bobbie, sed Pa, have litel to be Con-Tented with.

I was just thinking, sed Ma, that maybe other peepul mite think us are a con-sceted fambly if they cud hear you talk like what you have been talking, sed Ma.

There is not a hare of conseet in my hed, sed Pa. Here is one member of our family that is bodied & almost Basheful, sed Pa. Why are you laffing, sed Pa.

I was just thinking about yure Con-Tent, sed Ma, with the asheent on the first sillabull, sed Ma.

I supoze Con-Tent is O. K. It is foolish to be all the time stoking & feeling, we mite as well take what come & never bat an eye, that is what Nature does in the books, so I will talk what come & I hoap plenty come.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A BROOKLYN man who was opposed to high rents tried to save money by moving into his neighbor's dog house. This was entirely satisfactory to everybody except the dog.

THIS guy snored so loud that owner had to take the dog in the apartment so that the airedale could get some sleep.

NOT only that, but he used to swipe the bones off of the airedale's dish.

IT got so that the dog had to ask the people in the neighborhood to keep from starving to death.

THIS guy used to run up to the back door any time he heard somebody whistle.

HE even sat in the doorway of the dog house and whined so that people who passed by would throw him pieces of bone.

HE ate so many dog biscuits that he got in the habit of barking whenever he was hungry.

HE even learned to growl, but having been married at one time, this came easy to him.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney
Boston Health Commissioner.

"JUMPING HEART" must come from overeating or over-exertion. Many of my correspondents have described their symptoms, saying:

"My heart misses beats after eating or unusual exercise.

An examination would probably reveal the fact that the stomach has had some trouble in this direction. In the passages and cavities of his head, or that he has had or now has some very bad teeth. It would almost surely bring out the fact that he is constipated and likes to take cathartics.

I say this because this sort of irregularity of the heart always comes from poisoning of the system. And the poisoning is a majority of cases comes from some infection about the teeth or tonsils which in turn infects the bowels with germs. These germs and the toxins that they manufacture are absorbed and thereby weaken not only the heart itself but in exciting irregularities, but the bowel muscle causing constipation.

There is only one thing to do if such is case and that is to begin at the beginning by finding out the cause and removing it. This means a careful examination of the throat and upper air passages and of the teeth—the latter by having X-ray pictures made.

As soon as the cause is located have it removed. Then you will get well.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

AC. what age is it safe for me to give solid food to my baby?

MRS. H. E. P., Malden.

It would be safe to give the ordinary child solid food at the age of two years.

I have blood pressure. I would like to know what foods I and better to eat and avoid.

E. Boston.

There are certain foods which are believed to raise the blood pressure. The theory is that meats, meat soups, and eggs are to this class. The important thing is to find what one most suspects you are under the influence of, however, it would be better for you to get a diet list from your doctor well and your individual needs.

FINANCE

By George Wheeler Hinman

"In his Labor Day speech John W. Davis very probably will give a full explanation of his views that democracy in government and democracy in industry alike demand free recognition of the right of all workers to share in all decisions that affect their welfare."

The foregoing announcement was made in Sunday's newspapers. What does it mean?

Does it mean that workingmen should have something to say about the conditions under which they work? Perhaps.

But if so, Mr. Davis would go no further than Mr. Gary of the Steel corporation and Mr. Rea of the Pennsylvania. And these two gentlemen are not usually regarded as radically progressive. So the announcement must mean something more than that.

Does the announcement mean that workingmen should become partners in industry, buy stock, acquire power, become capitalists themselves? If so, Mr. Davis goes no further than Mr. Harvey Firestone of Chicago and many other chiefs of big business.

* * *

"Industrial democracy" is making every effort to sell shares in their business to employes.

Apparently Mr. Davis and his politicky man mean "industrial democracy."

Otherwise they would not be comparing "democracy in government" with "democracy in industry." Otherwise Mr. Davis would not have spoken at other times of "industrial democracy" as one of his political aims.

"Industrial democracy" in business and industry, what is the idea? We doubt that Mr. Davis himself realizes. But it is time for persons who talk about it vaguely as an American policy, who may be called to vote on it as an American policy, who certainly will bear it debated often in the next ten weeks as an American policy, should exactly understand it.

Political democracy, with which Mr. Davis compares industrial democracy, means what? It means every man and woman at the polls is just as good, just as powerful, just as able in directing the policy of the country as any other man or woman. Each and all have equal say so. One man or woman, one vote—that is the practice and principle.

Now, this is just the practice and principle that the so-called reformers in industrial democracy wish to establish in industry, business, commerce, finance. They want, for example, that every man and woman in this, let him read Webb's "Cooperative Commonwealth," the last book on the subject.

In politics, the man with a fortune invested in the country counts no more votes than the man with nothing invested in the country. In industry, if our industrial democracy came, the man with his capital invested in an industry would have no more say regarding that industry than any one of the workingmen who had no capital invested in the industry. In the management of the industry, the man who now owns a newspaper would be polivoted by his compositors. The man who owned a factory would be voted down by his night watchmen.

What would that come to? It would come to full fledged Socialism. Private capital would be abolished. Private business would fade away, why?

For the simple reason that men with capital would go out of business. If other men, without capital in the business, were to regulate the course of the business, the man with capital would cease to risk his money. What then? Why, in one way or another the government of the people at large would have to keep the nation as a business going. The brainwinners could not be allowed to walk the streets and starve. So, in one way or another, the government would have to get hold of capital—seize it, expropriate it, confiscate it offhand or gradually, violently or peaceably, national nation-wide Socialism, would be here.

We then should have accomplished what Philip Snowden, Socialist chancellor of the British exchequer, grandly calls the "Suppression of the capitalist system by an industrial and social order based on public ownership and the democratic control of the instruments of production and distribution."

That is what "industrial democracy" means if it means anything.

It is well, in business, as in politics, to know where we are going when we start out. In this case, the world is full of wisdom. But get at the facts a business man has only to open his eyes, read a little and think awhile. As regards public opinion, they will be found right here. This brief article has to do only with the business proposition. And that is proposition enough for one day and one column.

* * *

(B. C. Forbes is on his way to Europe, where he will study at first hand problems with which the Dawes plan is associated. The Forbes' column will be resumed in September with such foll informa-tion and observations, as in the past have been of great value to readers.)

WEALTH OF U. S. IS IN YEARLY PRODUCTION

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

In these days of rapid changes, when the measuring of prosperity by new and various barometers is being tried, novelty continues to be refreshing.

I am informed by the National Industrial Conference Board that the real wealth of the United States does not lie in its accumulated gold but in what it produces year by year.

An investigation recently made by the board of the economic progress of the United States during the last 20 years reveals that fitness found the physical production of agricultural crops rose about 50.2 times that of manufacturing increased 2.5 times, and that of mining over 4 times.

This enormous increase in production was accompanied, and entirely accomplished, by an increase of approximately 2.6 times in shipping facilities, made from a considerable expansion of auto truck transportation and minor lighter service and waterway construction.

With the exception of shipping tonnage, every one of the items on the chart shows an increase that is above the increase in population. This would indicate that from an economic point of view, the population of the United States is considerably better off than it was in 1850.

There is more food, more of manufactured goods, more of mining production available per unit of population now than there was two, three or four generations ago.

The usefulness of this population also is clear. By 1877 it had doubled from 1850; by 1892 it had trebled and by the end of 1902 was more than one dozen-half times greater than seventy years previously. The use of the population was at that pace it grew a few years after its discovery had been practically absorbed. Then the growth was slower, but during the next ten years a sharp upward turn started. Increases were of tens of grams in business and, in part, the heavy traffic on the wires during the years of the war.

NEW HAVEN HAS IMPROVED

With the recent restoration of earning power the New Haven Railroad's treasury position has undergone a steady improvement. The balance as of June 30 last reveals a smaller cash deficit than for a number of years; likewise the largest excess of current assets over current liabilities reported in a long period. As of June 30, 1923, current assets, increased from $27,812,576 on June 30, 1922, to $29,815,306 June 30 last, while the item of materials and supplies, increased from $27,812,576 on June 30, 1922, to $29,815,306 June 30 last, while the item of materials and supplies. On the other hand, current liabilities declined from $22,757,870 to $21,693,849.

Current assets have not shown a very striking change in the last twelve years. The impressive fact has been the steady whittling down of current liabilities. This has resulted in a transformation in the working capital position which is best depicted in the following table:

BULLS RESUME WORK IN WALL STREET

A seven-point break in Davison Chemical, probably resulting from the rescinding of stop-loss orders, caused some unsettlement on the New York Stock Exchange list around the end of the first hour, reasons of a point or so taking place in a number of the steels, equipments, motors and oils.

Bullish operations were soon resumed in other quarters with issues of the tobaccos, rubbers, merchandising issues, Atlantic Refining and so forth. American showing net gains of 2 to 2¾ points before noon.

Union Tank Car, which climbed 5¼ points to 122¼, headed a list of those which made new 1924 highs, which included New York Central at 110⅛ and U. S. Smelting at 36.

Trading was brisk throughout the morning, sales exceeding 325,000 shares in the first hour. Call money was easily tapped at 2 per cent.

Steels's ability to show big earnings on 58 per cent operations is a reflection of an expenditure of $1,000,000 for new construction and additions and a gain of $450,000,000 in working capital since December.

Reduction of $5,500,000 in preferred dividend and interest obligations is expected to add to more than $1 annually on common.

In trading on the Boston Stock Exchange U. S. Smelting was up nearly 2 points. Most price changes were confined to fractions.

TRAFFIC TURN UPWARD SEEN ON B. & M.

There are indications of a turn for the better in Boston & Maine Railroad's traffic and gross earnings and the upward tendency should, according to precedent, be accentuated in the fall months.

If business revival from the recent low level materializes in New England as anticipated, the seasonal improvement in railroad traffic this year should be more marked than usual.

July freight revenue of Boston & Maine was at the rate of $4,600,000 annually, or virtually the same as the June earnings from freight. Ordinarily there is quite a marked decline in July from June but the road and encouragement is derived from the fact that this year it has held at the June level.

Passenger business in July, when the vacation season gets into full swing, is invariably given a substantial increase over June and this year is no exception. Revenues from this source, are placed at $1,934,000 against actual June passenger earnings of $1,669,092.

Earnings from freight and passenger traffic should considerably top than in July, 1923, but the relative decrease in freight was much less marked than in either May or June. Estimated freight revenues were about $685,000, or 15.7 per cent. lower than in July last year while passenger revenue was off $200,093, or 9.5 per cent.

Total operating revenues, including mail, express, etc., are placed at $6,435,000, which is $960,000, or 12.9 per cent. less than in July, 1923. It is worth noting that in June the decline in total operating revenues from last year was over 20 per cent. and in May it was over 19 per cent.

PHELAN SEES MOTOR CHEER

The second half of 1924 will return the largest business the motor industry has witnessed in any similar period, according to James J. Phelan, of Hornblower & Weeks, just returned from a trip through motor manufacturing districts in the Middle West.

"My examination of several motor companies, in touch with scores of others," he said, "showed that the industry has gone a long way to sell off the surplus cars remaining from the unprecedented selling season last Spring.

"Motor men generally look for a heavy business the second half, particularly because of the vastly improved buying power of the rural population, as well as the better feeling in general. It is my impression is that the motor industry will have its biggest second half year's business during the current days of prosperity. Of course, will be in closed cars, as we are now entering the big selling season for that type of car."

EVEN PIRATES HAVE EYES FOR BEAUTY

ENID BENNETT AND MILTON SILLS

They will be the central figures in the sensational film, "The Sea Hawk," at Symphony Hall next week. The picture is an adaptation of Rafael Sabatini's thrilling story of pirates, plunder and the Barbary coast.

The new photo-play spectacle, "The Sea Hawk," will be presented at Symphony Hall beginning next Monday evening. The novel by Rafael Sabatini, from which the film was made, has been widely read and has established the author's reputation as one of the foremost living writers of fiction, based on historical narrative.

The story is a thriller in which there is woven a tale of the strange adventures of an English gentleman of long ago who is abducted from his home, becomes a galley slave after capture by the Barbary corsairs on the Mediterranean, and then rises to a place of power as chief of all the corsairs.

Milton Sills, as Sir Oliver Tressillian, leads a great cast of 3,819 performers. The scenes are spectacular, showing four huge old galley ships, English and Spanish merchantmen and men-of-war, harem scenes and slave auction scenes.

The principal feminine player is Enid Bennett. Others in the cast are Lloyd Hughes, Wallace MacDonald and Wallace Beery. The director of the production was Frank Lloyd.

MISS KENNEDY ADDS NEW LIFE TO 'POPPY'

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

W. C. Fields, who does such adroit things with tennis balls and a high hat in "Poppy" at the Majestic, found a new playmate in the cast last evening.

Madge Kennedy, who has done meritorious things in pictures as well as upon the speaking stage and who has toyed with the role of Poppy for months and months in New York, last season, stepped upon the local stage in her own role last night to the evident satisfaction of everybody, to say nothing of how Mr. Fields cheered up at the new gesture that gave "Poppy" an additional thrill.

Miss Kennedy, who travelled along with "Poppy" for nearly an entire season on Broadway, giving the entertainment an elixir that is seldom found in musical comedy, rejoined the cast at the Majestic last evening.

The enforced vacation imposed upon her by a friendly physician, prescribed, no doubt, for the benefit of a shattered nervous system, was something not to be taken seriously by the friendly audience that more than met her half way on her return to the musical drama of the hour.

What Miss Kennedy gave to "Poppy" was sufficient to lift the entertainment out of the commonplace entertainment into rollicking comedy. Her task may have been simple but it was admirably done, for there was no question of the impression she stamped upon the playgoer who turned out for fun on a cool August night.

Other changes in the cast of "Poppy" last night included Jean Newcombe and Allan Edwards, new to the piece but trained to the best points of characterization in small town types.

WELL POINNED BILL PRESENTED AT KEITHS

To say which offering on the bill at B. F. Keiths Theatre this week is the outstanding feature would be an impossibility, from the time that Will Morris opens the show with a comedy bicycle act until the El Rey sisters bring down the curtain with their novel dance revue on roller skates, there is not a weak spot on the entire program.

Belle Story, the young American prima donna; Martha Hedman, with a clever concert comedy built about her musical talent; Harry Jans and Harold Whalen in a new line of comedy that brings down the house; the comedy skit "Waiting," with Jack Egan, Gwyn Stratford and Florence Allen, are all members that won the unqualified approval of the audiences attending the opening performance.

Ralph Smalley, former cellist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was given a cordial greeting, while the audience was non the less appreciative of the songs of Frank Crumit, the well-known composer.

John Giuran and Marguerite in a unique dance revue presented a novelty number that was entirely in keeping with the excellence of the remainder of the show.

Power

There's a Lot of It in Running Water; More in the Initiative and Referendum

Governor Baxter of Maine, reporting to the people of that State that the waterpower companies interested in the Kennebec Reservoir bill will return to Augusta next Winter and make renewed efforts to get what they want, reminds Maine folk of the greater power which is theirs in the initiative and referendum.

The Governor, who retires from office at the close of the present year, has been spending two days in the Dead River region. He climbed Mt. Bigelow.

"The country that was to have been flooded by the waterpower corporations was at my feet," he says.

"I am convinced that if I have done nothing more for the people of Maine than to prevent the passage of that bill my time has been well spent in their interest. To allow any private firm to flood that great territory, create a lake 28 miles long and obtain deeds to the State-owned land at the outlet, would have been a crime against the people.

"I vetoed the bill. The Legislature passed it over the veto, but later repealed it. During the discussion the promoters offered the State $25,000 a year for a 40-year lease, but later withdrew the offer. That was a trifling sum for the privileges they would have obtained. I am glad they did not get them. If I were to be Governor again I would never deed these rights for any sum of money; the most I would do would be to lease them for a term of years, the State retaining ownership.

"Whatever happens I shall oppose any legislation that gives away this great privilege. AS A PRIVATE CITIZEN I CAN INITIATE A REFERENDUM FULLY AS EFFECTIVELY AS I DID WHEN I WAS GOVERNOR.

"The heritage of future generations is at stake. The people must be on their guard."

The best method yet devised to keep a bossed, ill-informed, wild, tame or corrupt Legislature in check is the initiative and referendum. As was said many years ago about the revolver in Texas, "when you want it you want it bad."

It was a great day for Maine and the best interests of all her people when the initiative and referendum was written into the law of the State.

Needless Worry

The Great Mass of Voters Know More About Aspirants for Nominations Than the Springfield Union Gives Them Credit for Knowing

The Springfield Union cites the fact that there are seven candidates for the Republican nomination for Treasurer and Receiver-General of Massachusetts as an argument against the direct primary system.

"The list is headed by Allen, whoever he may be," says the Union, "followed by another Allen, equally unknown. Then come Bean, Brown, Burrell and Keith, with Youngman at the tail end.

"Keith and Youngman have been going around the State quite a bit and have made some acquaintances. Brown is fairly well-known to city and town treasurers. The great mass of the voters, however, know little or nothing of any of these candidates, with the possible exception of Burrell, and what they know of him is not especially to his credit."

If James W. Bean of Cambridge and William S. Youngman of Boston are not well-known to the great mass of Republican voters, then long service in the Massachusetts Legislature does not count for much.

Either that, or the great mass of Republican voters do not read the newspapers.

There are still three weeks before Primary Day; why doesn't the Springfield Union tell its readers all about the seven candidates?

The Union, plainly, sighs for the "good" old days, when nominations were decided upon around a table and the voter took whatever was handed to him.

In those days, not so long ago, it wasn't necessary for the voter to know ANYTHING about his party's candidates.

All About Rats---

Or at Least Enough to Tell You How to Get Rid of Them

From the following letter, written by Mr. Casper of New York, you may learn something about rats that you didn't know. Coal miners are not the only individuals that occasionally have reason to be grateful to rats. During the great war, white rats and mice were kept in the trenches. And these creatures, because of their highly sensitive nervous organizations, were able, in advance, to warn the soldiers by their agitation of the approach of poison gas. The white rats and mice knew it was coming long before the human beings could detect it. That gave the men time to put on their gas masks. The mice, presumably, died.

Nevertheless, while they may be useful occasionally in medical experiments, on cancer, and in other ways, the rat and mouse are enemies of the human race, and the information that follows about how to get rid of rats is welcome:

To the Editor:—Dear Sir:

"I always read the 'Today' column in the American with interest.

"In a recent edition there was comment upon an infant being bitten by a rat and a method for keeping rats happy by feeding them raw meat.

"Miners are superstitious about hurting the feelings of rats; they feed the rats the remains of their lunches and put up with their depredations, because they claim that the rats warn them of the approach of poisonous gas and other forms of disaster.

"One miner told about a rat that became exetted, bit at his trousers and tried to pull him away. The miner kicked at the rat, and the latter finally wrapped its tail around the miner's dinner pail and ran away with it. Soon after the miner started in pursuit several tons of coal caved in at the spot where he had been standing.

"However, most people have no cause to be sentimental about rats and have no desire to keep them happy. If they will mix equal parts of dry cornmeal and plaster of paris and keep a supply in their haunts at all times the rats will disappear. I have tried it myself and know that it works like magic. The theory is that the plaster paris makes them search for water, and they finally die. At any rate, they never return.

"Yours truly,

EDWIN A. CASPER.

"P. S.—I believe that if no water is accessible around the house the rats perish in the nearest sewer."

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

FAITH is the sublime confidence a woman has in a man when she asks him to "be sweet" to her fascinating woman guest; the perfect trust which a man has in his own charms when he leaves his fiancee in the care of his best friend.

* * *

Alas, a woman can marry half a dozen times "for love"—and still not get it!

Helen Rowland.

Nowadays a man seems to be going through life with his hand on his pulse and darting any girl to make him register a thrill.

No man, apparently, is ever responsible for the fluctuations of his own heart—before marriage a woman always "leads him on"; after marriage she always "drives him off."

To select exactly the kind of wife who would agree with his tastes, match his ideals and fit into his life and his ways would be too simple, easy and unexciting for any man. What he wants is always something he has to fight for before marriage and to fight with forever afterward.

No girl can appreciate the deep, sweet serenity of real love until she has suffered, at least once, from the vexations and fluctuations of a woman-charmer's wavering heart.

* * *

When a husband suddenly stops complaining or disapproving, a woman always wonders "what" old chief he's up to now"—just as when a small boy is too quiet.

Off the screen it isn't so much a perfect profile as a perfect "line" that makes a perfect lover. One man can beg a kiss in a way to make a girl feel that he's playing a joke on her, and another can steal a kiss in a way to make her feel that he's conferring an honor upon her.

A man's "overtime" at the office is always hard work, but a woman's "overtime" around the house is just "a nice way to fill in her evenings."

Most girls fail at making a big career because when Opportunity knocked at the door, Love was always stealing in through the key hole.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

OH, it's good to slip off like a gray truant child from the streets of the daily grind, good to sniff at the clovers and laugh, beguiled by the thrill of the fresh, sweet wind! For he who labors without an end is a foolish clap at best, and there's never a gift that the high gods send that's as sweet when you're tired as rest! As though work may befriend for a half-score moons, comes a day when it palls at last; comes a day when the south wind calls and croons of the fields as it hurries past. Then you yearn for the calm of a quiet place when the Summer in emerald gown holds the country-side in her warm embrace, with the harvest, gold for her crown. Longer here in some forest's fragrant shade where the sounds of the office cease and a swift caress on your soul will be laid, Mother Nature will grant you her peace. Be it hill or plain, be it sea or shore, so it's far from the paths of men you can wander back through a low, green door to your childhood joys again. We are old, we are wise, we are far away from the life that the first man led; but still we will turn on a Summer day when the clouds sail low overhead, we will turn once more down the lengthy trail till the sounds of the cities die; we will win to the treasure that cannot fail and the joy of the wind-swept sky!

Mother Has Hard Struggle

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a young mother with a little girl three years old and am having a hard struggle to get along. I have been out of work for some time; my husband deserted us three months ago and we hardly get enough to eat. Would like to get work in some family where I could have my little girl with me. I wonder if some kind reader would give me some clothing. I take size 38 in dresses, and a few things for my baby, size 2 or 4.

MRS. M. B.

Fire Destroyed Their All

Helping Hand Editor:

Could you help two little girls whose father and mother are both in the hospital? Last night fire destroyed everything they own in the world. Anything in the line of clothes will be appreciated as they have nothing whatever to wear. One girl is twelve and the other ten.

MRS. A. G.

Things for Baby

Helping Hand Editor:

Would you please give me the address of a family where there is a baby about a year to a year and a half. I have a few things I could send that might help a little. I will send them parcel post anywhere.

E. C. W.

Thank you very much, Mrs. E. H. M. is in need of baby clothes such as you mention, and we are sending you her address.

All Need Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

Will you please find someone who would like to give me a hand. My husband makes only $18 a week and there are three children and myself, and I have a boy who is sick all the time. My husband has been out of work a long time; I am five weeks back on my rent and the city and the charity has been helping me. My husband would greatly appreciate a pair of old shoes, size 8½ or 9, and pants 38 by 30; boys, age nine and four; and girl, eight months. Also some clothes for the baby and for me, size 40. My boy has no clothes for school. Also if you have any old dishes, chairs, carpets, or any old corset, size 32, as I need them badly.

MRS. G. G.

Needs Clothes for T. B. Camp

Helping Hand Editor:

I have a girl 12 years old who has to go to a tuberculosis camp and is in need of quite a few things that I can't afford to get. My husband has been out of work a lot and I am heavily in debt, so it makes it hard for me. I am also an expectant mother and would be glad to receive anything for the baby. My girl who is going away needs a bathrobe, middy blouses, khaki bloomers and pajama suits. She is to go at a moment's notice, so I hope some kind reader will supply me soon. I have four other girls besides her, ages 11, 10, 8, 5. I would be glad to get anything for them.

MRS. L. G. K.

Asks for Carriage

Helping Hand Editor:

Will some kind reader kindly ask some kind reader if they have a stroller or carriage they will not need as I am the mother of five and am expecting another in October. The youngest now has rickets and I can't carry her to the clinic for treatment.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON TIRED

By DR. FRANK CRANE

NO, I don't want to go to any kind of entertainment. I am too tired.

I don't want to go to any place for supper, nor to see anyone dance nor indulge in any game. I am tired.

The world is too much for me and I would like, most of all, to go to sleep. My bones ache, my back aches and my head is weary.

Youth is too much for me. The antics of children weary me, and the forth-putting of those who are still in their youth gives me a feeling only of uneasiness and no desire to join them.

I am tired, plain tired, and I ask no more of the world than that it shall go away and let me alone.

I suppose that there is such a thing as an instinct of rest as well as the instinct for activity, a feeling for a welcome of death, or its likeness—sleep, as well as a feeling for the exercise of one's faculties.

I suppose I am growing old. The things do not interest me that interest most people. I want to indulge in no sports and take place in no activity.

I do not like the city and its noises, its continual hub-bub gets on my nerves. I want the country and its quiet, with the gentle fall of rain and the hum of insects.

The chatter of friends no longer interests me. I wish they would keep still and go away. The most considerate thing that anybody could do would be to leave me alone.

There were times, when the blood was high, in which I called for the excitement which comes from any kind of society, any kind of forth-putting. But those times have passed and I look forward only to sleep.

I can conceive of no better heaven than one of eternal rest.

Those who conceive of heaven as a place of endless activity are those who understand the human frame as a bundle of potencies only waiting to be developed.

I am not a bundle of potencies. The vessel has been emptied and there is nothing more attractive than sleep.

My body is tired and my soul also. I am tired of seeing things and hearing things. I have all the impressions that can be accumulated. There is nothing new to me. I am entirely sophisticated.

Perhaps the new life may come with an infusion of a new spirit, but until it does the old spirit must have its way.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON HISTORIAN OF INSECTS

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

ON July 27 was inaugurated at Serignan, France, a monument commemorating the first centenary of the birth of Henri Fabre, the most celebrated entomologist of our time. France is very proud of Henri Fabre, though to some people, who do not allow their minds to stray far, he was only a "bug hunter." The same persons lightly call astronomers "star gazers" and quote the fable about the man who, while staring up into heaven, fell into a ditch.

Fortunately there is a satisfactory share of solid sense under every human community which lifts it, as a whole, above the level of mere physical utilitarianism and causes it to honor such of its members as have devoted their lives to what Emerson called "the things of the intellect."

Immense Value

In the case of another great scientist, Louis Pasteur, whom France so highly honors that she has lately set his portrait on her postage stamps, in the place of imaginary goddesses, even utilitarians may approve the choice, because Pasteur's studies and discoveries have been of such immense and evident value to the health and the commissariat of mankind. But with Fabre it is different. Fabre saved no vineyards from phylloxera and no dog-teetered hamlets from the horrors of rabies. He only studied the ways (and shall I say minds?) of ants, wasps and other humble and petite, though very busy, inhabitants of the earth, dwellers among sands, pebbles and grass blades, and in the bottom film of the atmosphere, who find their tiny lives also made up of intermingled pleasures and tragedies, delights and disappointments, as they ride along with us through vast space on this racing planet.

Fabre's claim to honor resembles in some respects that of the Shakespeares and Molieres, who put mankind on the stage for mankind itself to look at. For we can understand ourselves best when we see ourselves at a little distance behind the orchestra and the footlights. Now, the insect world is, to human eyes, a natural theatre, seen behind the footlights that border another order of life.

From our viewpoint, its inhabitants are nothing but actors in a mimic scene. Fabre has called the attention of millions to this crowded theatre around our feet, potted out in its activities, shown us how to watch and enjoy its astonishing dramas, and suggested fascinating interpretations of them. He has shown us that it is not "a waste of time" to spend an hour or two, or even a day or two, with the little people of an ant-hill. Their doings are full of lessons for us, and full of amusement, too, and of thought-stirring incidents.

But the great value of Fabre's efforts to detect and record the ways of insects lies in the evidence which they have afforded of the filiation of all terrestrial life. The glimmering of mind in the doings of an ant carrying a dead fly to its distant lair, and overcoming on the way obstacles that would try the ingenuity, skill and perseverance of a human engineer, is like a light signal to a thoughtful observer, conveying to him the message from that lower world: "I, too, am conscious of what I am doing and of what I want to achieve."

May Be Trusted

It is not Fabre's interpretations so much as his records of tireless observations that make him a monumental figure in the progress of entomology. He is a historian, and describes in the manner of a contemporary annalist, the life of races of little creatures whose anatomy is so different from ours that many persons indignantly scout the suggestion that those creatures possess and exercise intelligence, which, at bottom, is of the same nature as our own.

We care more for any historian's facts—if we feel sure that they are facts—than for the theories he may base upon them. Many of the most brilliant human historians violate the facts for the sake of their theories. Fabre's own histories may be trusted for their facts.

Once-Overs

YOU CANNOT LEARN ALL THERE IS TO KNOW.

Are you imbued with the idea that your opinions are best, and so sound that others cannot possibly equal yours and in consequence you do not seek to get benefit from others?

It matters not how much you know, there is more you can learn.

Because you have had more experience it does not follow that the less experienced one cannot give you some good advice.

Perhaps your word has been law so long in your establishment that you have come to believe that your word is so supreme, and anything that others around you might say is of little value.

If your attitude toward the opinion of others were more open and you would show your appreciation and consideration of the facts submitted to you at times, you might get some valuable pointers.

But if you carry the idea that only that which emanates from your brain is worth something, naturally none will trouble to advise or inform you.

Few can go far on their own experience—entirely.

Cease projecting yourself into things so much that you cannot see anything in the opinions others have formed from a different experience.
